

In Memoriam

Francis Bond

Francis R. Bond, 86, a longtime owner, driver and trainer at Batavia Downs and Buffalo Raceway, died peacefully Dec. 26, 2017, at United Memorial Medical Center in Batavia, N.Y.

Mr. Bond was born in Buffalo, N.Y., on July 27, 1931. He became a Marine after leaving school and began boxing while in the service in the Armed Forces Title Fights. He fought in the lightweight class and eventually worked into the featherweight division. The then 126-lb. "fighting Marine" was described as "a game and lively scrapper who could take a hit and come back with a better one."

Mr. Bond became one of the Marines' top boxers, winning a featherweight title in 1953 while often times fighting men from the professional ranks between service bouts and sometimes competing in higher weight classes.

He continued to fight professionally in the Golden Gloves after he left the service under the name Bobby Bond and was trained by Angelo Dundee, who also conditioned the likes of Muhammad Ali, George Foreman, Sugar Ray Leonard and Carmen Basilio. He competed in 15 professional fights all over the Eastern Seaboard, including New York City at Madison Square Garden.

Mr. Bond first got involved in harness racing in 1966 and eventually got his trainer and driver licenses. He ran a small stable for the next 39 years, seeing most of his driving success in the 1970s (where he scored 135 of his 189 career victories) and most of his training accomplishments (total of 108 wins) between 1990 and 2000. Mr. Bond also occasionally catch-drove horses when the opportunity arose.

His last winning effort as a driver came on May 16, 1996, behind H F Harriet at Buffalo Raceway.

Mr. Bond was an entrepreneur and made a buck any way he could. He owned a soft drink distributorship; ran the track kitchen at Batavia Downs; and sold hay, straw, and feed for many years while, and after, he was competing. He was known by everyone on the backstretch and was an affable individual his entire life.

Christine Cachaza

Christine Cachaza, 61, much-loved mother, "nana," sister, aunt, and friend, died Jan. 12, 2018, after a two-year battle with pancreatic cancer.

Born May 28, 1956, in Buffalo, N.Y., she was the daughter of the late John E. and Lucille Mongeon.

More than anything else, her life centered around her family. Family meant everything to her. She was famous for saying, "Family is the best." Although she was not one to play favorites, she was especially proud of her grandsons, Kaden Garland and John (J.P.) Cachaza.

She spent most of her life working in harness racing alongside her father, brothers, and son. She loved the horses, but even more, she loved her racing family. Even after she was not physically able to work at the track, she kept in touch and always took the time to think of others.

Whether she was beaming with pride about her grandsons or simply wishing someone a happy birthday, she would always go out of her way to make someone's day a little brighter. She never shied away from love; she was sure to remind friends and family of her love for them "to the moon and back." Indeed, she loved and was loved by many.

In addition to her parents, she was preceded in death by her sister, Ann (Buttons) Paradis. She is survived by her son, Eric (Stacie) and their sons, John and Kaden (Garland); brother, David (Barb) Mongeon; brother, John (Ann) Mongeon and their daughters, Marie and Nicole; brother, Scott (Karen); nephew, Shane; and Karen's children, Jordan and Kate Dingman. She also has family whom she loved dearly spread across the U.S. and Canada.

The family would like to extend their gratitude to Mary's Haven for their care and support. When asked how she felt about staying there, Mrs. Cachaza replied, "It feels like home."

Thank you also to the many friends and family who reached out and who visited, called, or conveyed their support and love. The family would also like to thank Christine's dear friend, Kate Campbell, who put her life on hold to support and assist Christine through her journey.

Memorial contributions may be made to Mary's Haven, 35 New St., Saratoga Springs, NY 12866, or www.maryshaven.org.

She had many talents pertaining to the sport of harness racing. She and her husband, Bob, were an integral part of racing at the Rochester Fair for more than three decades.

The Ferlands also had an extensive harness racing museum (Rochester Fair Hall of Fame) located in the grandstand at the fairgrounds, but what Mrs. Ferland will probably be best known for was the way she meticulously recreated miniature racing colors, with her gift of needle and thread, where she memorialized many of the drivers who passed through New England over the years. These miniature colors, numbering in the hundreds, are currently on display in the grandstand at Scarborough Downs in Maine.

had a small stable which started at Blue Bonnets before racing successfully at Windsor in the Joe DeFrank days. He moved his stable to the Meadowlands in the mid-1970s.

One of his career highlights came in the late 1970s when he cared for and trained the great trotter Glencoe Pride, whom Percy had sent to the Meadowlands. Glencoe Pride dominated the open trot class, winning six in a row, with John Campbell doing the driving.

Mr. Foley trained horses until the late 1990s and then worked with the track maintenance crew at the Meadowlands until dementia began to set in six years ago.

He is survived by his wife, Linda, who lives in New Jersey; and eight brothers and sisters who live in Canada.

He was a sweet, caring, well-mannered and high-spirited young boy. He always had the biggest smile on his face, with sparkling blue eyes staring right back at you, and was full of so much love. He enjoyed giving hugs and smooches (with Eskimos), loved to play hide-and-go-seek and wrestle with his Bubbie and Sissy.

He was an active youth member of the USTA and enjoyed traveling all over Ohio to the county fairs as the Weller Stables' official mascot and bucket scrubber. "Everyone has to start somewhere" was his motto. He always loved helping in the barn and he always would walk to all 11 stall doors and say, "Good morning, neighs." He would light up with pride with the joke of them being called Baby (just recently moved up, too) Little Jay's Neighs. He always brought great joy and plenty of amusement to anyone he ever met, and by the time they left him, he would already be their buddy.

Memorial contributions may be made to a memorial scholarship fund for Jay's brother, Gabriel, which can be sent to Lindsey Olds Funeral Home, Attn: The Laing Family, 3085 S. SR 19, Bloomville, OH 44818. Checks should be made out to Jayme Laing.

William Paull

"Doc" was known to many as a hard-working veterinarian who positively impacted numerous people.

He was born April 4, 1940, and raised in Wheeling, W.Va., as the son of William and Kathryn (Foull) Paull. He graduated from The Linsly School in Wheeling and then majored in agriculture at West Virginia University. Upon graduation, he ran a family farm in Wheeling until moving to Columbus to attend The Ohio State University College of Veterinary Medicine from which he graduated in 1971 and served on staff as an ambulatory veterinarian.

Dr. Paull went on to be the veterinarian at Hill Farms in Hilliard, Ohio, and was a preeminent practitioner in the harness racing industry. In addition to serving as the track veterinarian at Scioto Downs for many years, he managed a private equine practice.

In 1986, Dr. Paull, and his wife of 41 years, Barbara, bought 65 acres in southern Delaware County and established Timber Rock Farm, which served as one of the leading equine reproductive and boarding centers in Ohio. Dr. Paull loved being outside and on a tractor and worked tirelessly to maintain his beautiful property and care for the countless horses that he treated over the years.

Duncan Price

Duncan Price, 74, a longtime harness horseman, died Jan. 9, 2018.

He was born in Suffolk, England, on Sept. 30, 1943, to the late John and Jean Price and was a resident of Grant Park, Ill.

Mr. Price was a longtime breeder, owner, trainer, and driver in Illinois, where he owned and operated Galewood Farm in Grant Park for a number of years.

After working with his family at the first harness racing track in Rhodesia, Africa, "he came to the United States when he was barely 18 years old with nothing, not even a place to live," according to the oldest of his three surviving children, daughter Laurie Price Chapman.

In Rhodesia, his father operated the racetrack while his mother was responsible for managing the wagering at the track, which raced only trotters.

His father suggested that he "should go to the United States to learn about pacers." He spent some time in New York and Florida before settling in Illinois, where he served as president of the Illinois Harness Horsemen's Association and never moved back to Rhodesia.

"He loved the sport of harness racing," said Price Chapman. "Every waking moment, that's what he did."

He is survived by his former wife, Candy; children, Laurie Price Chapman, Wendy, and John; grandchildren, Kennedy and Marissa; and brother, Juan. Along with his parents, he was also preceded in death by his sister, Anne.

Memorial contributions may be made in his name to the International Elephant Foundation, because "he always loved elephants." Go to <https://elephantconservation.org/fundraising/donate/>.

Gary Warner

He was the son of Donna (Provenzano) Warner and the late David Warner Jr., nephew of James Samberg and the late Barbara (Provenzano) Samberg, and the grandson of Pat (Barbara) Provenzano. It was Mr. Provenzano who introduced pari-mutuel harness racing in western New York when he opened Batavia Downs in Batavia, N.Y., in 1941 and it became a family business.

Mr. Warner was born April 17, 1965, in the 10th Ward in Rochester, N.Y. He attended Sacred Heart Cathedral Grammar School, Cardinal Mooney High School, and Gannon University. He excelled in many sports including golf, basketball, and soccer.

His easygoing demeanor and quick wit made him popular with everyone he met. He was especially proud of his high school soccer team at Cardinal Mooney and recalled with pleasure the year they won the New York state championship.

He was the admissions director at Batavia Downs for many years where one of his favorite parts of the profession was greeting patrons, most of whom he knew by name.

After his tenure at Batavia Downs, he moved to Palm Desert, Calif., in 1992 to pursue a career in the golf industry. It was there that he met his wife, Melissa. They were married in La Quinta, Calif., in the very room in which they met.

Mr. Warner became the director of corporate tournaments at PGA West and he continued with that organization for many years before moving to San Jose, Calif., where Melissa was residing prior to their marriage. After moving to San Jose, he became warehouse manager at Williams-Sonoma in Los Gatos, Calif., and for more than 11 years he loved, and was loved, by his "work family."

His passions included family, friends, the Pittsburgh Steelers and treasured summers in Thousand Island Park, N.Y.

He so enriched the life of his wife, Melissa, and was the devoted, proud father of Riley, and embraced and cherished his stepson, Grant Hendricks. He also left behind a tight family which includes his mom, Donna; sisters, Amy (Carl) Munding and Julie (Michael) Miller; and brothers, David J. III (Mary Beth) and Eric (Julia Poli). He is also survived by many nieces, nephews, aunts, uncles, cousins, and countless friends. HB
